We Should Have Listened to Adolf Hitler

By Hugo Ravn

Dear reader,

Before the brainwashing causes you to interrupt the reading of this article, because we have mentioned Adolf Hitler in a positive way, please look at the following equation:

Nazi = National Socialist = socially-minded nationalist

So the terrible label 'Nazi', in its neutral sense, means a 'socially-minded nationalist'.

Now please provide a single argument as to why a 'socially-minded nationalist' should not be considered a champion for any people and any country's welfare.

Being a socially-minded nationalist is completely indisputable.

One can hardly imagine a more correct political approach to one's people and country.

And that is exactly why National Socialism as a political movement has been demonized to such an extent, that we no longer dare to pronounce the words 'National Socialism' or mention the movement's founder, Adolf Hitler.

Since we can also observe – if the true story were allowed to be told – that the so-called 'Nazi' Germany was a nation which mainly consisted of socially-minded nationalists, then perhaps you can understand that everything told in the mainstream media, which has been branded as something nefarious and negative, was in reality – in every conceivable way – exceedingly decent and positive.

Now, maybe you will be able to continue reading a little longer.

It is my and others' full conviction that Europe has never been offered a political movement more honestly committed to create a Europe for the benefits of all its people than Adolf Hitler's National Socialism.

Hitler's Germany – from when he was elected chancellor in 1933 and until 1939, when war broke out – was considered by all Germans who had experienced the time, as the most happy, optimistic and confident period in their lives.

The German population experienced, as one out of few in Europe, what a life of peace and freedom really means.

They saw how the fruits of their labour benefited themselves – as opposed to being plundered by corrupt bureaucrats, Jewish banks and other forms of organized crime.

Sorry, did I say 'Jew' – just as you were unprepared?

I hope you can control your forced programming a little longer, and avoid going on autopilot.

Everything I write about 'Jews' in the following is true world history, which has been suppressed and demonized – sent down the memory hole.

LATE NEWS

The Jews' attack on the German people was led by internationalists who did not give a damn about the country or its population. On the contrary, the goal of the international Jews was to destroy Germany as a nation.

This gang had already in 1933 declared war on Germany in an orgy of hatred against everything 'German', especially after the Jews' coup plans for Germany had been averted by a farsighted and powerful European leader – perhaps the only leader we have had, and ever will get – at the forefront of a movement, which in its foundation, was created to serve the people and not only those in power.

Prosperity was everywhere in Germany in the 1930s, and everywhere the German population was first priority at every level.

The individual German for his part worked with utmost enthusiasm to contribute to the rise of Germany, which obviously was for the greater good of all.

Total solidarity was all around. Trade unions and other Jewish-engineered fighting organizations – developed during the communist era in Germany – were ticking bombs, which sooner or later, would have been triggered by the Jewish leadership, and would have ended in riots and divided the population.

The goal had recently been a civil war and a communist takeover. The model was the Bolshevik Revolution in 1917, which founded the Soviet Union in 1922.

In these years – when the growth in Germany was not halted by the destructive forces of Jewish politicians, banks and businesses – the Germans negotiated among themselves, towards agreement on wages and working conditions, as only two parties with one and the same overall goal can agree.

When honest people with a personal knowledge of Adolf Hitler – both then and in the rest of their lives – spoke about his qualities, you will see a completely different picture of this leader:

Hitler was gifted with an exceptional intelligence. Already as a 30-year-old, he had war experience, and on top of that, he possessed a natural political flair, which no-one could possibly measure up to at the time. Today, he would be impossible to match.

He was a war veteran, a skilled soldier who had received the Iron Cross twice despite the fact that his standing was not high with the military upper class, who saw him as a threat to the class-divided society.

His closest men were also veterans of war, or otherwise proficient in their area. They knew from the beginning that only a showdown, secured with a protection force (SA), had the opportunity for success.

He was also an amazing speaker, and radiated a winning charm.

Many women loved him.

He was in every respect a presentable and decent man.

He was a very sociable and amiable man.

He had a dazzling memory and a unique insight into the history of Europe in particular, and world history in general.

He exerted an artistic talent with great attention to images and aesthetics.

He was uncompromisingly able to use force when necessary.

He was a skilled tactician and strategist.

He was honestly thrilled with children and kind to animals.

He had no personal fortune. Of course, he had what he needed. When posterity accuses him of stealing European art treasures, there was no question of simple enrichment at the expense of others, but an effort to ensure the European culture for the future.

His dream was to create a Europe with a high social standard on a superior cultural level. With ‘Europe’ being ‘all of Europe’ – all nation-states with their own borders and own culture, united in a common National Socialist Reich.

Apart from the very laudable Lebensborn homes (orphanage for disadvantaged children), a number of other sympathetic results from the National Socialist era in Germany were:

- The organization 'Mother and Child' was developed with 30,000 centers in Germany. It was possible to donate gifts for children in poor circumstances.

- New churches of all faiths – 640 in total – were initiated or built.

- Between 1933 and 1937 (in just 4-5 years), 458,179 houses were built, all with gardens, and virtually debt free.

- The interest burden could not amount to more than 1/8 of the average wage.

- Between 1933 and 1936, more than 91,000 farmsteads were built, which could be transferred by family inheritance.

- The terms and conditions of employment were better than anywhere else in the world.

- Sports and recreation activities were developed. Germany's youth was the happiest and healthiest in the world.

- At the Olympic Games in 1936, Germany won far more medals than any other country. Jesse Owens, the black runner from the United States was celebrated and honoured, even though the media told a very different story.

- Sea trips on large cruise ships to foreign destinations were made possible. The British government would not allow these ships to dock in England, for fear that their downtrodden workers would learn the truth about working conditions in Germany.

- The protection of animal rights was a major concern of the National Socialists, who passed a law to that effect, namely 'The Reich Animal Protection Law'. The brutal kosher/halal slaughter was banned.

- ‘The Reich Law for the Protection of Nature’ was also introduced.

- Criminality soon dropped to very low levels, while drug offenses were unknown. Many smaller courthouses were closed down (traditional Jewish jobs), due to ‘a lack of crimes’.

- Hitler demanded that the police should serve the German people unarmed.

- German bicycle and motorcycle manufacturers were leading in the world, not only quantitatively, but by the quality of products.

- Classical inspired art of high standard was produced and promoted by the government.

- Germany produced the most elegant cruise ships in the world. Zeppelin Hindenburg was produced as a flying hotel. Germany also developed the first helicopter which was flown by Hanna Reitsch.

- The State supported music and fine art. Globally, Germany was the country with the most symphony orchestras in the world.

- Germany was behind the most important advances in medicine, chemistry, nutrition, science, varnishes and paints, synthetic oils, petrochemical products and much more.

- TV and video were German inventions.
